Medical Radiation Practice Board of Australia fees set for 2016/17

The Medical Radiation Practice Board of Australia (the Board) has announced that the national registration fee for medical radiation practitioners for 2016/17 will remain the same as in the previous year.

The Board and AHPRA must agree on the fees paid by registrants¹. For the 2016/17 registration period it is agreed that the registration fees for medical radiation practitioners will remain at $180.

The fee for practitioners whose principal place of practice is NSW is $150.²

A fee schedule, including the fee arrangements for practitioners whose principal place of practice is NSW, will be published on the Board's website.

The National Registration and Accreditation Scheme (the National Scheme) is funded by practitioners' registration fees.

The Board has established a clear financial plan that will ensure that there are sufficient funds for the Board and AHPRA to provide an efficient, effective and economical national scheme of registration and accreditation, while ensuring that practitioners are not unduly burdened.

Board Chair, Neil Hicks, said that over the past two years the Board has worked to reduce its costs, the benefits of which are now flowing to registrants in the form of lower registration fees. The Board will now work with AHPRA to ensure that the administrative costs of the scheme are kept at minimum levels.

The Board will shortly publish the Health Profession Agreement (HPA). The HPA outlines the partnership between the Board and the Australian Health Practitioner Regulation Agency (AHPRA) and provides information about the Board's financial operations, the services provided to the Board, and the funds provided to AHPRA for administration of the scheme.
